King. Goe call him hither presently.
The deepe resoluing witty Buckingham,
No more shall be the neighbour to my counsell,
Hath he so long held out with me vntirde,
And stops he now for breath?

Enter Darby

How now what newes with you?
Dar. My Lord I heare the Marquesse Dorset
Is fled to Richmond, in those parts beyond the seas
Where he abides.
King. Catesby. Cat. My Lord.
King. Rumor this abroad.
That Anne my wife is sicke and like to die,
I will take order for her keeping close;
Enquire me out some meane borne Gentleman,
Whom I will marry straight to Clarence daughter
The boy is foolish and I feare not him;
Looke how thou dreamest; I say againe, giue out
That Anne my wife is sicke and like to die.
About it, for it stands me much vpon,
To stop all hopes whose growth may damage me,
I must be married to my brothers daughter,
Or else my Kingdome stands on brittle glasse,
Murther her brother, and then marry her,
Vncertaine way of gaine, but I am in
So farre in blood, that sinne pluckes on sinne,
Teares falling, pitty dwels not in this eye.

Enter Tirrel.

Is thy name Tirrel?
Tir. Iames Tirrel, & your most obedient subiect.
King. Art thou indeed?
Tir. Proue me my gracious soueraigne.
King. Dar'st thou resolue to kill a friend of mine?
Tir. I my Lord but I had rather kill two deepe enemies
King. Why there thou hast it, two deepe enemies.
Foes to my rest that my sweet sleepe disturbs,
Are they that I would haue thee deale vpon;
Tirrel, I meane those bastards in the Tower.
Tir. Let me haue meanes to come to them,
